Pope Francis Making a Sharper Left Turn

One of the arguments that Roman Catholics have against Protestants is that Protestants are all fragmented into the hundreds of denominations. "Rome never changes" is a common theme. However, the present Jesuit pope is doing a left turn that illustrates how the Vatican has always tried to ride herd on wherever history happened to be going. Francis's path is in direct line with the Vatican's long range plan. Ex-Jesuit Alberto Rivera describes that centuries-long plan in the Alberto Series of the Crusader Comics available from Chick Publications.

The early papal institution was organized under Constantine in the 4th century. From that time on, the goal has been world-

Veteran street tracter, Tim Berends, has worked for several years where crowds of visitors flow over a bridge in Las Vegas, Nevada. His goal is 300 Chick tracts handed out in an evening. Over time he has honed his approach which is both bold and friendly.

His favorite is to study the person for something unique that can be used to disarm the person who might resist the tract. This is necessary because Tim has lots of competition primarily from people handing out porn flyers advertising local attractions.

If the person is wearing a cap of a baseball team, Tim will say, "Everyone tonight who likes the Dodgers, gets one

Many Muslims Searching for Truth

By G.J.O. Moshay

Deception is more dangerous than a blatant lie. Islam is not a lie but a deception. Deception is a sandwich of lies. Islam does not say there is no God. It says, yes there is god, but ..., not the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, not a Trinity, did not come in the flesh, is not the Author of the Bible, etc, etc. If we do not identify the god of Islam, much of what we know about Islam would be speculative.

Satan is not an atheist. He KNOWS there is God Almighty. He knows it is the fool that would say in his heart 'there is no God'. (Psalm 14:1). Atheism is not a good product to sell. You don't need to be a professor of biology or physics to be an atheist. All you need is a level of folly. So, Satan tells people, "OK, there is God, but ..." From that "but" he goes on to create many other "gods," and "god almighties" and false "creators" for people who he could not convince of atheism.

This is exactly what he has done in Islam. Islam believes in a "god almighty," a "creator", a "most merciful", "most compassionate," etc.

We must not be deceived by the violence we see every day from Muslims all over the world. Many of them are asking themselves, "Is this Islam? Did Allah command this? Did Allah command Mohammed to do such acts in the Qur'an and the Hadith?" Unfortunately, the answer is yes. But we must realize that there are Zacchaeuses among Muslims in America, Canada, Europe and Australia who are climbing trees, stretching their necks to have a glimpse of Jesus passing by our Jerichos. Jesus saw the man and called him by his first name. "I must come and dine in your house today" (Luke 19:1-10).

We can learn from one of King Saul's failures. Because the Amalekites attacked the vulnerable Israelites when they had just left Egypt, God commanded King Saul after many years that he should go and wipe out the Amalekites.

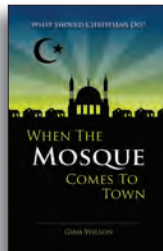

Saul allowed a few to escape. He also spared king Agag and apparently his children. Years later, it was an Amalekite that brought the anointed head of King Saul to David. If Saul had totally obeyed God, there would have been no Amalekites to behead him. One of the descendants of Agag (Haman Amedata, the Agagite) whom Saul allowed to escape had fled abroad (to Iran, former Persia) and joined politics there. He devised a million-dollar project to start a holocaust to exterminate all the Jews all over the world in one day.

The Amalekites we spare may be the ones that would behead us tomorrow or plan for our mass destruction. Of course, as believers, the weapons of our warfare are not carnal but the mighty gospel that the modern Zacchaeuses are searching for.

The Muslims we neglect to bring to Jesus Christ may be the danger we face later. The 'moderate' Muslim we spare today in America, Canada, Europe and Australia may be the radicalized of tomorrow. In fact, they are part of

Churches Next For Homoactivists

If the U.S. Supreme Court this June finds that our Constitution contains approval for same-sex marriage, there will be only one major institution left to speak for the truth—the Bible-believing church. And the full wrath of the homoactivists will be focused upon us.

Capitulation is almost complete. One by one, state and local governments, universities and colleges, mainline protestants, judges at every level, the White House, legislatures—all have bowed to the homosexual bullies. Their march is under the banner of tolerance, but question their behavior and they quickly prove that tolerance is a one-way street. Full approval is their only goal.

The violence of their knee-jerk reaction was evident early. In 1978, San Francisco passed an anti-discrimination ordinance protecting sexual “orientation.” Soon after, a local church found their organist to be a practicing homosexual. Unable to convince him of his sin, they fired him. He sued, based on the new ordinance.

Soon the media stirred the pot and the pastor and church was flooded with obscene calls, letters containing pornography, death threats, and detailed plans to kidnap, assault and murder the church leaders’ children.

The suit was settled in favor of the church, which only heightened the harassment. Protesters visited the services, defaced the pew Bibles, slammed windows, stalked around the sanctuary shouting. This kind of bullying response has been just below the surface ever since. A few other churches have had similar experiences over the years, but the homoactivists have been so busy consolidating their hold on the masses, that churches have been mostly under their radar.

Now, the only pocket of resistance left to them is the Bible believers. Homosexual New York Times columnist, Frank Bruni, is one who is issuing the call against us: “Christian churches must be made to ‘take homosexuality off the sin list.’”

He advances the standard line that “science and knowledge,” has obsoleted the “...scattered passages of ancient texts” that support the view of “gays, lesbians and bisexuals as sinners.”

And that call to violence is being heeded. Just last week came the report of two churches in North Carolina brazenly vandalized. In Jamestown, Wesleyan church members found windows broken, signs pulled up and jammed through the radiator of the church bus. The building had been pelted with eggs, strewn with toilet paper and silly string and tagged with “Gays Okay,” and “God hates you” graffiti. The next day the Grace Baptist Church in Greensboro received similar treatment.

The two pastors responded to the attacks with sermon-on-the-mount forgiveness stating that the vandals were just expressing the sin that resides in all of us. However, there was a flavor of “why us?” in their response. This typifies the head-in-sand attitude of too many pastors who failed to see this juggernaut coming down the road.

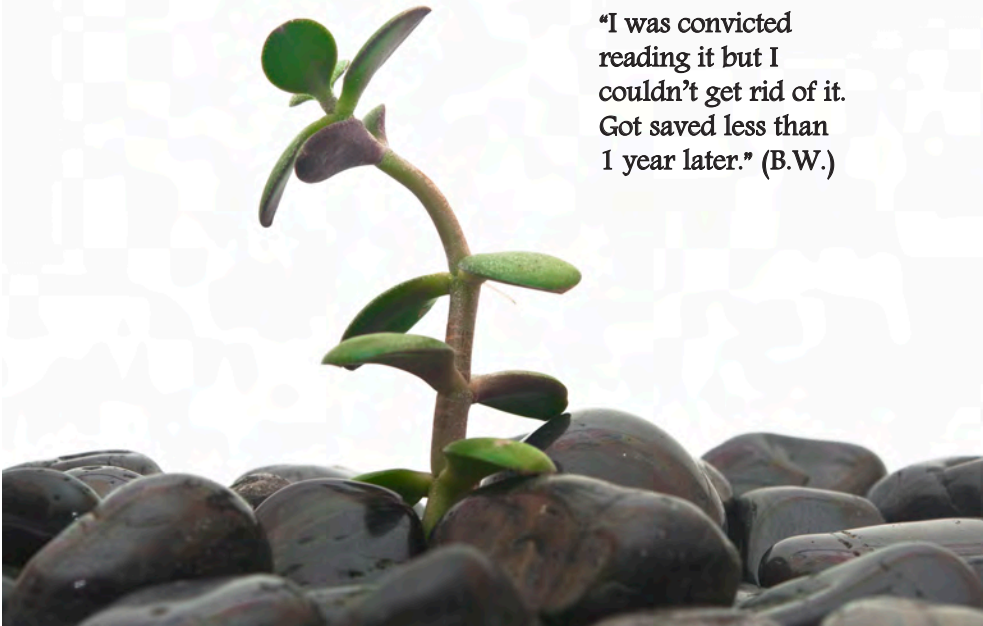

Homoactivists have succeeded in replacing the biblical truth that sodomy is a choice, with the mantra that they are “born that way.” The Christian public bought the idea that if the poor homosexuals were just given space, they would quietly do their thing and we could all coexist in happy freedom of religion.

That is not the character of the demonic spirits driving the men at Lot’s door, refusing Lot’s daughters and demanding to gang-rape the angels. Obliteration was God’s only choice.

For the church today, it is late in the game but we must not just play dead. The gospel is still powerful enough to turn even the hardest heart. Pastors must rise up boldly standing for the power of God’s Truth. And Bible-believers everywhere can saturate their communities with no-nonsense gospel tracts.

Soulwinners, some can still be saved, “those as by fire.” We have much work to do.

You never know which seed will sprout

"I was convicted reading it but I couldn't get rid of it. Got saved less than 1 year later." (B.W.)

Jesus taught us to spread the good seed of the Gospel into the field of the world. But we don't know which seeds will sprout. So we sow, and we hope. Some water, and yet others reap.

Chick Publications still gets letters, emails and phone calls from grateful people who found the Lord because someone was faithful to sow.

So let's remain faithful, and creative. There are so many ways to share a tract. And if it's a Chick tract, you know it's going to get read.

Where will you sow today?

Great Cost of Tolerating Sin

When Christians in America went soft on sin a century ago, sin became increasingly legal. The fruit was not immediately obvious but now we are beginning to see a horrible harvest.

Our children are a prime target. The Girl Scouts of USA recently announced that transgenders are welcome to join. If a boy is recognized as living as a girl “then Girl Scouts is an organization that can serve her in a setting that is both emotionally and physically safe,” states the GSUSA web site.

After years of resistance, the Boy Scouts recently gave ground in admitting openly homosexual members, while still resisting openly “gay” leaders. This only slightly lessened the attacks.

For years, our public schools have been purged of all references to God or His words. Now we have a high school in California who is holding a sex education “pleasure workshop” led by a “pleasure activist,” who also leads “workshops” for a sex toy porn shop.

For decades, the traditional family has been under assault. Early sitcoms made the father of the house a stumbling buffoon. No-fault divorce opened the door for both to ignore solemn vows and avoid the hard work of raising a family. Government welfare also financed easy escape from family responsibilities.

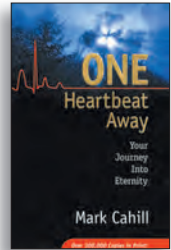

Now, this summer, the U.S. Supreme Court has to decide if redefining the family is legal. But abandoning God’s design for the creation and nurturing of children has consequences.

Recent studies show that fatherless homes provide the vast majority of our ballooning prison population. Two-parent homes are much more likely to produce college graduates and productive citizens. Despite media claims otherwise, studies are surfacing, along with testimony of children raised in same-sex “families” that they have suffered serious emotional harm.

Medically, promiscuous men-to-men (M2M) sex accounts for two-thirds of the new HIV cases in the U.S. and 75% of syphilis infections. They are 17 times more likely to develop anal cancer.

Bible believers are becoming increasingly the target with the full force of the government coming down on the heads of Christian business owners. The attacks have been primarily against flower shops and bakeries who refused to supply homo-

Why I Don't Trust the New King James

By Ron Rockney

I have a lot of Christian friends who use the New King James (NKJV). They're convinced that the genuine King James Bible is old and out of date. These are great folks. I have no problem with them. I just don't trust that book. Whenever they read, I check it against my tried-and-true King James. I want to know what God REALLY said. Sometimes they match —and sometimes not.

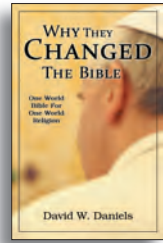

Here are just three examples why I do not trust it.

1. The first one is in Acts chapter 3 where TWO verses, (13 and 26), in the NKJV say that Jesus is God's servant. But my Bible says He's God's SON. Which one is it? Is He God's servant, or God's Son? We really need to get this one right! And I just don't have time to read a Bible that doesn't.

2. In 1st Corinthians 1:18, my traditional

King James tells me that the preaching of the cross is the power of God to us who are saved. But the NKJV tells me that it is the power of God to us who are BEING saved. Once again, those are not the same. If I had been raised Catholic, I would be very comfortable with "being saved" because I would have been taught all my life that you cannot really KNOW you are saved. You are on the road to salvation. And if I faithfully do the rituals of the Mass, confession, last rites at death, and suffer a few centuries in purgatory for my sins, then that is added to what Jesus did and, hopefully, it will be enough to get me in to heaven.

sexual weddings. Fines have been levied and death threats are not uncommon against these staunch believers.

Having been somewhat stymied in cowing the Bible believing churches, violence is their next strategy. Just this week, two churches in North Carolina were vandalized. Windows were broken, signs were ripped up and jammed through the grill of the church bus. Pro-homosexual graffiti included expletives.

In California, a recent law makes it illegal for licensed family therapists to counsel teens looking for help to overcome same-sex attractions. The President is pushing for a similar federal law.

The U.S. Supreme Court is scheduled to rule in June on the federal Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA) that the president refuses to enforce. Seventy companies including Starbucks, Google, Microsoft and NIKE have filed a brief with the court complaining of the complexity of figuring out how to award family benefits to employees whose "marriage" may be legal in one state and not in another.

Just to show how far it can go, Denmark recently passed a law closing its "animal brothels" to stop a growing "erotic zoo" tourist trade.

Couple all this with the "innocent blood" of 57,000,000 dead pre-born babies, how can we ever again sing, "God Bless America?" Unless we have a quick and broad repentance, God's wrath against the rottenness in Israel, described by the Prophet Ezekiel, will surely be our fate.

Genuine revivals in the past were often preceded by saturation with no-nonsense gospel tracts. We need to do it again, while we still can.

Over Six Feet...

of these,” and offer a copy of the tract, The Slugger. If he spots someone who, like Tim, is over six feet tall, he will say, “Everyone tonight who is over six feet, gets one of these.” An M&M T-shirt or “good looking” dog also works.

He picked that spot because of the variety of peoples who come across it. “I don’t have to go to the foreign mission field. The world comes right here,” says Tim. He keeps copies of Is Allah Like You? to use when a Muslim comes by.

When asked, “What is this?” he will reply: “It’s a love letter for the Muslim people.” If he refuses, sometimes the wife, walking behind the man, will furtively reach for the tract and quickly pocket it for future reading.

Tim says at first he shied away from giving tracts to children, but decided if they were old enough to go to hell, they should hear the good news of the gospel. So he will say, “Be sure your parents get to read this,” as he hands the tract to the youngster. Often this will get the parents to allow the child to accept it.

Tim admits that Las Vegas is one of the hardest places to get people to take tracts with only about a 30% acceptance rate. But it is his home base and convenient. Occasionally, he and a friend, Mike Cahill, will board a plane for a blitz somewhere else in the world. Mexico is one of their favorites, since it is close and generally very open to the gospel. There the take rate is almost 100%.

When they crave high adventure, they will get the okay from the Holy Spirit to invade more hostile territory such as Israel or even a Muslim country. Their technique there is low key, plant as much seed as possible and get out leaving the Lord to “give the increase.”

They have recently found a new, fertile field: local schools. Again their approach is both bold and friendly. Carefully avoiding intruding on actual school grounds, they stay on the public sidewalk as the kids come streaming out to go home. They do not ask anyone’s permission ahead of time, but arrive early and first share a tract and a smile with the parents waiting in their cars to pick up the kids. This defuses some of the concern the parents might have when they approach the kids.

If there are any security or police in the area, they will approach them with a respectful smile, thank them for their service to the community, and offer them a copy of the tracts they will be handing out. He said that wearing the Chick T-shirt, Please Don’t Go To Hell... really helped get attention at the schools.

Tim and Mike are sold on the value of just seeding the tracts out. He avoids long conversations with sinners, preferring to sow 300 tracts than spend an hour in often fruitless debate. Tim agrees with John Wesley: “The easiest way to approach a sinner is with a gospel tract.”

Tracts Work —In Prisons and On The Streets

Mexican Prisons:

Missionary Eric Brockhoff continues to feed tracts to the prison ministry in Mexico. His plan has worked wonderfully well. Teams of local Christians are now being welcomed once a week as they bring in boxes of tracts bagged with goodies of high quality nuts and candy. Some of the prisons already have small pockets of believers. “The tracts are very well received, strengthening the Christians who are already there as they attempt to spread the Word among the other inmates,” says Brockhoff.

Brockhoff has teamed with local pastors to expand to as many different prisons as possible. Heading the outreach is Pastor Alonzo who is a veteran of the gospel, having guided the planting of 13 local church congregations. “God has given us favor with the authorities so that the prisons have welcomed the teams and many of the prison staff have also responded to the gospel,” he reports.

Streets of South Africa:

Missionary Mike Fleuch writes from South Africa that he is training other workers in street evangelism using gospel tracts as part of the outreach. God has blessed his efforts with nearly 200 attending Sunday morning and evening services. He effectively combines tracts, street preaching and discipleship videos in growing excited Christians eager to evangelize and plant new congregations.

He is starting a third year of a Bible School training for a vision to “see Bible-believing churches planted up and down this country.” He, like other missionaries, have discovered that saturating a community with gospel tracts and street evangelism will get the attention of enough people “who have ears to hear” to start a young congregation. Tracts become an important part of the mix by both providing basic instruction in the gospel and making it easy for new believers to witness.

The tracts also become a first attention getter. Those who respond to the seed planted by the tracts are followed up on with training videos and Bible courses. Fleuch says that their worship services have grown requiring more chairs and space. Many who attend local “mega-churches” are not exposed to soul winning, but some are discovering the joy of street witnessing by learning of Fleuch’s ministry.

He relates how one group was introduced to public soul winning: “For the next three hours, we stopped every soul we could. After preaching to one guy for a while, I started to walk away when I saw somewhat of a terrified look on his face. I asked him if he was alright to which he replied, “No! What if I died tonight; I wouldn’t go to heaven!” A few moments later that young man bowed his head and asked Jesus Christ to save him from hell.

The group that was observing about lost it! They had never seen anyone get saved before. That night we held a three-hour Bible Q&A session attended by that 15-person group. The next day, we headed back to the streets for another three hours. This time, our group had grown to six people. They were flying up and down the streets handing out tracts and talking to people.”

This is typical of the missionaries who have found the value of Chick tracts as first bait in fishing for souls. God has allowed Chick Publications to join in the translating of tracts into over 100 languages and to maintain printing equipment capable of producing hundreds of thousands of tracts on very short notice.

As missionaries are discovering this convenient source of the gospel, demand on the Chick Mission Fund is rising. If you wish to help, see the information on the facing page.

Many Christians want to provide Chick tracts to missionaries.

wide control using spiritual bondage. In the west, this peaked during the dark ages where the strategy was basically convert or die, or pay tribute.

Reaction to this Inquisition-punctuated period led to the Reformation in England and America and the Enlightenment in France and Europe. The popes initially backed Hitler and Lenin to regain control, but that phase did not go well.

In Asia, Jesuit "missionaries" schmoozed their way into the graces of the leaders for a time, until their goal of domination was discovered. Several dozen countries expelled the Jesuits declaring all "Christians" as unwanted. True missionaries have had difficulty penetrating some of those countries such as China and Japan, ever since.

So, where are we today? The tiger has turned sly fox. After World War II, Vatican planners decided to abandon warfare and stress ecumenical love, instead. Beginning in the early 1960s, they convened an "Ecumenical Council" dubbed "Vatican II." The general purpose of the Council was to redirect the efforts of the "Church" to the modern world.

Much confusing language has been employed in this shift, but basically it is intended to keep the pagan doctrines of works salvation, virgin goddess worship, wafer god, priestcraft, etc. intact while making friendly noises to everyone outside. The language was changed from "heretics" to "separated brethren." Leaders of other world religions, even governments, were invited to ecumenical prayer gatherings. A new, warm face was turned toward the Jews.

Last month I took advantage of your sale of 1000 The Empty Tomb. I had no idea how I was going to pass out that many tracts. It seemed impossible!

Well, our community has an event called the Taste of Forsyth. I decided to pass out tracts at that event. I confess I was more than a little afraid of being arrested or being ill-treated by the public. Also I was alone as no one from my church would help me. I'm happy to report that the tracts were well received, I was not disturbed by the police, and as far as I know no tracts were discarded. At the event many asked what church I attended and I'm sure they will visit.

Just wanted to share with you, I got an order from you folks a week or 2 ago, 1000 The Empty Tomb tracts, and about 7 Creator or Liar (I mainly got the 7 for the prophecies in them). Well, to make a long story short. I gave a couple Creator or Liar to my son, and he then gave one to his 58 year old friend, Henry, at work who he had been talking to and praying for, for a long time. Henry trusted Jesus as his Savior through that tract. He said he had been "thinking about that stuff for a long time, and he realized how simple salvation really is." Praise The Lord! What an encouragement!

But I'm not Catholic. I don't believe that. Through Jesus, alone, I HAVE eternal life. Jesus finished the job. It's a done deal.

3. There is a little something extra in Luke 23:34 that I hear was not in the first edition of the NKJV, but added later. Just a footnote. Not important, right? But here we see one of the big differences between Christianity and the other religions of the world. The Creator of the universe allows His creatures to torture and crucify Him. But on the cross, He prays, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do." That's big stuff. He forgave the Jews, the Romans, everyone, for this supreme insult. (And He forgives me, too). But there is that little footnote that says something like: "NU brackets the first sentence as a later addition."

Oh, so they are telling me that the "better manuscripts" leave out His forgiveness, that it was added later? You mean, Jesus really didn't say that? He really didn't forgive the Jews? I guess, if I was into replacement theology, I might like to believe that God has cast off his people and replaced them with someone else, but I would have to ignore the verses that say the promises to Abraham were forever. But you see, I'm not into that stuff. I still believe that the Jews are God's chosen people, that Israel is His chosen land, and that He is going to keep all those promises —like my Bible says.

The NKJV is full of "footnotes" that tell me what I am reading might not have been in the original. Does that build faith? No. So why are we giving a doubt-producing tions were quick to respond. Even Evangelicals fell for the new image, mostly ignoring the fact that none of the unbiblical doctrines were changed.

Now, with this new Jesuit pope, we see the next chapter. Rivera noted that Rome always adapts to the changing times. She sees clearly that the prevailing new world religion is secular humanism, expressed politically in the liberal "left." Pope Francis is taking up the leftist, socialist talking points of anti-capitalism, climate change, preferential option for the poor, income inequality, anti-war, globalism, etc.

None of this is about the true, biblical gospel. It is all about Catholicism's millennium-old thirst for world power. There has been much speculation over the years of the pope's position as the last-days anti-Christ or maybe the False Prophet. One thing is sure: her pagan rituals guarantee that she is not part of the biblical church of Jesus Christ.

As soul winners, we need to be aware of Satan's end-time strategies, but not give them any of our time that should be used to obey the Great Commission.

All of the cataclysmic events of the book of Revelation are rapidly shaping up. While we have the freedom to do it, we need to reach out to every sinner we can with the life-giving Word of God. If we saturate our communities with no-nonsense gospel tracts, maybe we can promote a revival that would give us a little more time to continue witnessing.

A MESSAGE FROM JACK CHICK...

Dear Ones in Christ:

My heart goes out to the billion precious Roman Catholics trapped in the jaws of the great whore found in Revelation, chapter 17.

They are terrified of leaving this religious monster that controls them from birth to death. They are caught in a web of religious traditions never mentioned in scripture. They are now in the hands of a very dangerous Jesuit as their new pope, who believes he is God on this earth—and the Roman Catholics believe it, too.

If a Catholic person gets saved and makes Jesus Christ his personal Saviour, the whore condemns him for the sin of presumption, a Council-of-Trent law. Most go crawling back into the arms of the monster. In the 1950s, you couldn't find a Catholic claiming to be a "Christian," it was always, "I'll die a Roman Catholic." Now, all of them claim to be "Christians" since the Vatican council of the 1960s—a new face!

Can they be reached with our gospel tracts? You bet they can. I received a letter from a tract-passing U.S. soldier stationed in Germany. During bad weather some cars and trucks were involved in a terrific crash. He arrived at the scene and began passing out tracts to those stuck in traffic. He came to a car that had three nuns and handed each a copy of Are Roman Catholics Christians? and went on his way.

His home was in Germany and when discharged he reenlisted. A few years later, at a big tennis tournament, two excited ladies approached him saying, "Remember us?" He said, "I am sorry, I don't."

They replied, "We were the three nuns you gave Are Roman Catholics Christians? to at the big accident. We read the tracts and all three of us got saved!!! We left the Roman Catholic Church and are passing out tracts, too!"

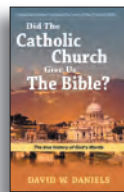

Beloved, they work! Many ex-Roman Catholics in heaven will bless you for telling them the Truth.

Your brother in Christ,

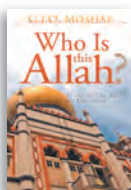

Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them. Romans 1:32
