Ground-penetrating radar was recently used to discover 215 children buried near the Kamloops Indian Residential School in British Columbia, Canada.

The school was operated by Catholic “missionaries” between 1890 and 1969. During that time, it was part of a network of schools that housed 150,000 indigenous children who were forced to attend state-funded schools; most of them run by Catholic teachers.

The rationale behind the schools was to help the indigenous children to assimilate into Canadian society. However, the Canadian government has admitted that there was rampant physical and sexual abuse of the students.

Canadian prime minister Trudeau has asked the Pope for an apology, but it has not been received. In addition, authorities have been attempting to get copies of the records from the school, but again have been stonewalled. Perhaps part of the reasoning is that

Abortion —Another Heart Problem

Few things have become as divisive in the nation as the topic of abortion. And yet this is just a symptom of a deeper divide. In so many ways, we have chosen to ignore God’s viewpoint.

When Jack Chick wrote Who Murdered Clarice?, it was mostly a bloody business. But modern, more sophisticated procedures make it no less evil. God condemns the spilling of “innocent blood” over 20 times in scripture (and it is hard to get more “innocent” than in the womb).

Since blood ultimately goes back into the ground, God claims that it cries out to Him for justice. If that is the case, it must be a roar in His ears, given the thousands of gallons that we have spilled from 60 million dead in the U.S.—and 17 million a year worldwide.

The Israelites who burned their children alive on the altars of the pagan idols were no worse than the “medical procedure” that we call “partial birth abortion,” killing the child during birth.

Is it a man, or some kind of a beast, that will turn a child in the womb and pull him out feet first till only the head this is one small corner of a huge stain on the efforts of early Roman Catholic conquerors in the Americas.

The European conquerors that invaded the New World generally did not treat the indigenous people well. But the worst offenders were in the countries where Roman Catholic missionaries landed. There are many stories in history of the brutality of these encounters. But the Vatican was in the middle of the ebb and flow of this part of history. Central to the politics of this era was the “Doctrine of Discovery” promulgated by a couple of popes during the middle of the 15th century.

The doctrine was not all that different from the kindergarten rule of finders-keepers. The Vatican simply gave permission to any governments dominated by Catholicism to take ownership of any new territories that didn’t belong to them. Some of the shuffling of kingdoms in Europe was done under this rule, but it mostly applied to land they were “discovering” in the New World. Under this doctrine, previous residents of the area were either evicted or worse.

An interesting example of how this has affected the world today is the fact that Brazil speaks Portuguese and the rest of South America speaks Spanish. As the Vatican presumed to dictate land rights under the Doctrine of Discovery, they stipulated that a line was drawn vertically through South America; one side of the line belonged to Portugal, and the other side belonged to Spain.

As tragic as it was for the little ones who were wrenched from their families and abused and buried in Canada, a similar tragedy is ongoing because of the false notion that Roman Catholicism truly represents the body of Christ. Satan has been exceedingly clever in constructing this

New Bibles ‘Diminish’ God’s Words

Does your Bible give you the full meaning of scriptures?

Users of the modern Bibles need to look carefully at the breadth of the meanings of the words that have been chosen compared to those used in the King James version. One example is the elimination of Acts 8:37. Here we have a diminishing of the requirements for baptism. With this crucial verse missing, the eunuch is simply baptized, and the requirement that he first believe with all his heart is removed. In another way, this also diminishes Jesus, Himself, by taking out of the Bible one of the references to His deity. (See Acts 8:37) Actually, there are several places where this happens to Jesus in the modern Bibles.

Another example is Jesus’ prayer, where He prays that His disciples would be kept from “the evil” (John 17:15). Some new Bibles change that to “evil one.” The concept of “the evil” is much broader than confining the evil to a diabolical individual. “The evil” is the pervasive atmosphere of evil that has come to dominate the cultures of the world. It alerts the reader to the much larger scope of the attack on his determination to obey God.

Another example is the doubt cast on Mark 16:9-20. Few modern Bibles dare to leave this completely out, but most include footnotes that this section is not in the earliest manuscripts. If this scripture is not trustworthy, this diminishment has several consequences. It diminishes the record of Jesus’ resurrection and ascension. It also diminishes the emphasis on the great commission and leaves one of the Gospels without a full narrative.

Another classic example of this diminishment involves the Great Commission. The emphasis in Matthew 28:19 is on “going” and “teaching.” In Mark 16:15, it is on “preaching.” These are the only two gospels that give specific instructions other than “ye shall be witnesses unto me” in Acts 1:8 and similar references in Luke and John.

Schools Are the New Battleground

Outraged parents are beginning to discover how much Satan filled the vacuum when we allowed God to be kicked out of the schools.

The New York Post reports how this worked in two upscale New York prep schools. Justine Ang Fonte, health and wellness director for the Dalton school, claimed that she did not use the word “masturbation” in a class of six-year-olds. But part of the class included a cartoon video “showing little kids talking about ‘touching themselves’ for pleasure.”

Confused parents tried to voice their objection at not being prewarned, but school administrators blamed the parents for “misinterpreting” the lessons. Even more devious content was included in the lessons: a discussion of “Gender and Bodies” enlightening the children on the possibility that they may have a gender different than what they were born with.

“Kids have no less than five classes on gender identity —this is pure indoctrination,” one mother fumed. Parents, who talked to the Post, refused to use their names, fearing retaliation toward themselves or their children. “We are furious,” another mother told the Post. “We were horrified to learn this was shown to our first-grade 6- and 7-year-old kids without our knowledge or consent. But it’s so hard to fight back because you’ll get canceled and your child will suffer.”

A previous article in the New York Post by the same author detailed another course held by Fonte at another posh school nearby. This one was for middle school students and was called “Pornography Literacy: An Intersectional Focus on Mainstream Porn.” Gay sex was openly discussed as normal along with the usual photos even showing partially-nude women in bondage. The students were asked to analyze “what is porn and what is art.”

One girl in the class told the Post: “We were all so shocked and mortified. We were all like, ‘Why are they doing this? Why do they think it’s OK?’” Parents were alerted because some attended the class by Zoom.

“It’s outrageous that the school is introducing pornography into a mainstream classroom and starting to indoctrinate kids. The goal of this is to disrupt families,” another parent observed.

Parents’ objections were met with stonewalling or obfuscation. An administrator issued an apology about the content of the class, but one mother, who organized a social media campaign, said “It’s not about this one class. It’s about the whole radical direction the school is going into.”

A statement by a Dalton spokesman exposed the godlessness of the schools: “As part of Dalton’s comprehensive Health curriculum for students, a lesson on Gender & Bodies included two evidence-based and age-appropriate videos approved for students 4 years and older. These videos align with nationally recognized methodologies and standards. We consistently review our Health curriculum, making sure that the content is developmentally appropriate and, if necessary, we adapt our curriculum accordingly. We will continue to listen carefully to parent feedback, respond thoughtfully to community concerns, and develop lessons that are in the best interest of our students, respect our community’s values, and correspond with best practices.”

Let’s take it apart:

HEALTH CURRICULUM:

Homosexual pushers have shoehorned their agenda into the “health” curriculum.

LESSON ON GENDER AND BODIES:

The lesson is that gender is fluid —to be chosen by the person.

APPROVED FOR STUDENTS:

New from p. 2

Most of the new Bibles have changed this concept to “make disciples.” Some would argue that “making disciples” includes “going,” “teaching,” and “preaching.” Yet, practically, this has encouraged a church-centered attitude for both pastors and congregation. What you hear in most churches is “get them into the church where they can get saved.” Pastors do not model the “witnessing” of the gospel in the community and therefore the members do not feel an obligation to present the gospel at work or in their neighborhoods.

If unbelievers can be attracted into the church, an occasional convert is baptized with great celebration. Even then, little is usually done to help him to be a serious disciple. Thus with this shift in “translation” the sense of obligation to the Great Commission by the average believer is diminished. And if you eliminate Mark 16:9-20, you take the very heart out of it.

This is particularly sensitive to a believer in gospel tracts, since they are a simple way to “witness,” and “preach” the gospel, sorting out those who might be interested in becoming “disciples.”

When we come to the Bible, we want all that God has for us. That can best be assured by a formal translation, one made deceptive counterfeit and selling it to the world as true Christianity.

Many of those to whom we witness want nothing to do with the gospel because they have been told of the sordid history of the Vatican brand of Christianity. No one has bothered to try to show them that that is a clever counterfeit by the enemy of Christ to discredit the true believers who order their lives according to the scriptures.

Satan is having a heyday with the new interest in the indigenous populations that were so mistreated by the Europeans who settled up the New World. Two generations of public school students in by a translation committee that is dedicated to exact meanings, eliminating any one member’s personal bias. Modern research has proven that there is only one Bible that results from this approach, the one authorized by King James.

To a greater or lesser degree, modern Bibles suffer from this diminishment of content. Their translation committees departed from the literal meaning-for-meaning approach used by the KJV translators, and lost some of the robustness of the original.

For a comprehensive study of the various approaches to Bible translation, David Daniels has given that history in his book, *Why They Changed the Bible*.

America have been taught this distorted history about the evils of Christianity over the centuries. In actuality, the real Christians who read the Bible, interpret it accurately and seek to live by it daily, would not have been involved in these atrocities. Still, our current culture is dedicated to this distortion of history. We will meet it in our witnessing and we need to know the truth so we can counter the lies.

Chick Publications has numerous tracts, comics and paperbacks proving that Roman Catholicism is not true Christianity.

COVID-19 Doesn't Stop This Soul Winner

Tim Berends is a bold soul winner who uses a lot of Chick tracts. For years, he had been based in Las Vegas, NV where, until a short time ago, he worked in Christian radio. His daily goal was to stand at a bridge on the Strip that is a high traffic area and pass at least 300 tracts to the crowds.

Since the pandemic began, traffic has been limited, so he began using a form of undercover invasion to get the tracts into the right hands. In the past, he has attended an Arab festival, sauntering in quietly, wearing an "I (heart) Muslims" t-shirt. He succeeded in seeding about 1,800 tracts before he was asked to leave. Another "witnessing" group, using a pig's head, found their approach didn't work.

Here is his own account of a recent sneak "attack:"

"I just returned from Utah with friends where we were handing out The Beast and The Visitors. On the back of the tracts we stamped '12 Free Movies! www.FullyFreeFilms.com'. A friend, Dan Fox, was helping me hand them out.

"When I would go up to people, I'd say 'free movie on suicide!' The movie EXIT, The Appeal Of Suicide is among the 12. There's a very high suicide rate amongst women and teenagers in Utah. I figured that after watching the movie they would read the tract [The Visitors] which totally exposes Mormonism and presents the Biblical Jesus and not the spirit brother of Lucifer, as the Mormons believe.

"I didn't expect the response I got. Practically everyone was telling me of a friend or relative who had committed suicide. Dan and I went to a restaurant and when the waitress came, I gave her The Visitors tract and a copy of Mark Cahill's booklet One Second After You... and told her that if she knew of anyone who's suicidal, that was for them.

"She gushed 'OH THANK YOU! THANK YOU! THANK YOU! Look at my wrists!!' You could tell that she had slashed them a while back! I gave her 5 other copies of the book and tract and she said she'd pass it on.

"Moments later, when I went into the main dining room to get some relish, I saw her handing the book and tract to two co-workers in the kitchen. I was thrilled!

"The next day, I went by myself to Salt Lake City to hand out The Visitors and to be honest with you I was more afraid of doing that than I've ever been going into the 19 Mexico border towns with Pilot Mike Cahill and handing out Why is Mary Crying?

"In Salt Lake City, there weren't that many people on the street and not many businesses open, I assume because of COVID-19, but again, tremendous response. I googled the address for the

“When I went in, I saw that a police officer and a fire department officer were being interviewed by a TV reporter. I told the officers how much I appreciated their

The Resistance to Sin is Rising

America (and most of the rest of the world) is under open threat by multiple forces. A homosexual juggernaut, and Godless humanism with its political arm, socialism, are two that are out to smash all opposition. However, parents and government leaders are finally waking up. Here are some examples:

In early June, about 50 members of the Changed Movement (changedmovement.com) went to the US capitol to tell their personal stories of transformation out of homosexuality and transgenderism. Their protest was specifically directed at the Equality Act that is currently moving through Congress. But they were highly vocal in their praise for Jesus Christ and His power to deliver them from their bondage. They also clearly made their point that the Equality Act is one of the most dangerous pieces of legislation for religious liberty that has ever been presented.

The Texas Legislature has recently passed a landmark education bill that draws a line against the godless socialist teachings, Critical Race Theory (CRT), that pit one race against another. It also targets “Protest Civics” that requires students to join street demonstrations for school credit. Contrary to the Apostle Paul’s teaching about the equality of all people before God (Gal. 3:28), these are some of Satan’s mechanisms to foster race warfare in the culture. Texas is one of several states that is attempting to protect our children from these diabolical teachings.

The groundswell against the homosexual agenda appears to be affecting the national media. On May 23rd, CBS News’ 60 Minutes featured a commentary on the Arkansas bill prohibiting doctors from treating transgender youth with puberty blockers and surgery. Correspondent Lesley Stahl departed from the usual one-sided presentation and included some who had detransitioned, allowing them to express their regret that they had ever tried to change.

One was Grace Lidinski-Smith, who described how she went to a transgender clinic and was accepted without hesitation into hormone treatment and a mastectomy. When it did not satisfy her dysphoria discomfort, she decided to detransition. “I can’t believe that I transitioned and detransitioned, including hormones and surgery, in the course of, like, less than one year. It’s completely crazy,” she told Stahl. The rising resistance to the homosexual bulldozer may be slowing it down, at least.

The US Supreme Court has agreed to hear a case that many people claim might jeopardize the standing of Roe v. Wade. It relates to a Mississippi law that attempts to restrict abortion to the early weeks of pregnancy. In order to get to the Supreme Court, it passed through two other lower courts. One of the lower court judges wrote,

See Resistance p. 14

We Never Know What Will Happen

I had gone into a restaurant next to a man on a stool. He was a big, big man. He was unhappy.

Somebody had given me a tract "This Was Your Life." Instead of saying anything, I handed him that tract, and very slowly he read it while I ate my lunch. The only thing I said to that man that day was "did you answer the questions on the last page?"

So he started all through it again, and he checked "yes, I understood the message" and he checked "yes, I'm ready to accept Christ."

I got up to pay my bill, and this huge man stood up (I had to walk by him to exit) and he hugged me strongly. He said "If you were not here today, I would be dead in two hours. I went to my pastor this morning and asked him 'Is there any hope for me?'. I was without hope. I planned to eat this meal and commit suicide. Had you not been here today, I would be dead in two hours."

Missions Fund Report

Slowly, the world is awakening from the spiritual slumber of COVID-19. Many churches are reopening, and even with masks, soul-winners are reaching out with the Gospel. Many never stopped, but so many more are waking up! Along with this, many Christians have suddenly become aware of how quickly things can change. The soul-winning they could do yesterday, they may not be allowed to do today. We must make use of the freedom!

Thanks to your faithful giving, we have never had to tell a missionary that we could not provide any more tracts. The cruse of oil has never run dry. Just during the last two months, the Mission Fund has been able to send more than 570,000 Chick tracts to missionaries.

So many of you are giving to the Papua New Guinea (PNG) Project. Ten new translations have been completed in Pidgin (also called Tok Pisin). Eight more are in the works. The paper is here and printing is underway on one million tracts for Missionary Chad Wells and the 500 small churches he supplies in the Southern Highlands of PNG.

Missionary Bob Criss in the Philippines, preaching on the island of Samar, has finally received all of the 50,000 tracts you provided. He has plans that will make a big impact on this small island. Just since early April, the Mission Fund has already sent nearly a quarter million more Chick tracts to various missionaries in the Philippines.

Now, years later, Ibrahim is pastoring a new work near Georgetown, doing extensive outreach in the streets of East Bank Demerara, Guyana. Thanks to your giving, and Shrivnauth's enthusiastic endorsement, 100,000 Chick tracts are now enroute to this work.

Missionary James Hoffmeister (Word for the World Baptist Ministries) has just received another 100,000 tracts for the island nation of Trinidad. Charity Baptist

We are making shipping arrangements now to send him another 24,000 Spanish tracts.

Missionary Todd Eklund is leading 5 churches to spread 200,000 tracts from you to the people of Mexico City.

Resistance from p. 8

“Nothing in the text or original understanding of the constitution establishes a right to an abortion.” He further observed that the lower court ruling against the law shows “...an alarming disrespect for the millions of Americans who believe that babies deserve legal protection during pregnancy as well as after birth and that abortion is the immoral, tragic, and violent taking of innocent human life.”

So, what is missing from these stories? Most are about legislative initiatives against remains inside, then carefully probe with one hand along the spine to locate the base of the skull so he can insert dull scissors and make an opening to suck the brains out with a powerful vacuum?

Until death, the baby is flailing his arms in shock at being disturbed from the safety of the womb. Then, the arms go limp and the empty skull is crushed to be more easily removed.

Fortunately, that procedure has been outlawed in most of the U.S. But a recent nominee for Secretary of Health and Human Services would not agree that this was a procedure to be condemned.

Procedures that have replaced it are only slightly less gruesome. So called “saline,” or “instillation abortion,” is designed to kill the baby in the womb before it is pulled out, usually piece-by-piece. A long, hypodermic needle is inserted into the mother’s belly. Fluid is drawn from the amniotic sac and replaced with powerful salt water (saline) or some other deadly chemical.

Once dead, parts of the baby’s body are removed with steel forceps and the pieces reassembled to make sure no parts remain inside the womb.

But “modern medicine” has come to the rescue. The gruesomeness is now these evils. We need more pastors and Biblical church leaders to speak God’s viewpoint with holy boldness from their bully pulpits. And we need more Christians who will seed the grass roots with no-nonsense gospel tracts. Will you enlist? Who Murdered Clarice? and Baby Talk are serious, hard-hitting messages because they speak to one of the most brutal acts that Satan has helped man invent. Nowhere does abortion fit into any civilized world, much less one guided by the Bible.

more hidden by killing the baby earlier in the pregnancy. Known as “medication abortion,” two pills equal a “simple” miscarriage. What the Creator designed as the miracle birth of a new, eternal life, a “heritage” from the Lord, is shed from its warm womb of promise and discarded in the sewer. The DNA blueprint is all there but will never blossom into tiny, grasping fingers, wiggly toes and a sunny smile.

A hard-faced rebellion against God’s better way is the root of this evil tree. Many are praying for a current case before the U.S. Supreme Court that could turn the tide against legal abortion. That would be well and good.

But it still does not address the sin at the heart of the problem—and scripture says that the heart is the problem. Both Who Murdered Clarice? and Baby Talk speak to this heart of the abortion problem.

God’s plan for sex in marriage is best, and there is forgiveness for sin when we violate His plan. But this deadly evil of killing children (abortion) needs to be spoken against in no uncertain terms. These two hard-hitting, no-nonsense gospel tracts do exactly that.

Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

We have been lied to.

In the past year, we have been lied to by leaders, politicians, doctors, scientists, media, and even some pastors. “Trust the science,” they say. But how can we trust “science,” when “science” keeps changing?

People used to put blood-sucking leaches on people who were sick because of “science!” Science is questions and experiments based upon inquiry and hypotheses. It is seldom permanent, solid answers. Pick up a 50-year-old science book on —basically anything, and you’ll see what I mean.

The same is true regarding the Bibles that have been given to us by the “science of textual criticism.”

“The Bible is the word of God!” Oh, really? Which one? And which printing? The NIV or NASB removes words in one printing and replaces them in another, or vice-versa.

Who’s making these decisions? Why? “It’s nothing personal; it’s just business.” That’s sure how it seems. It may be marketing, it may be this changeable “science” of textual criticism, but can I base my faith on it?

But there is one Bible you can trust, over 400 years tried, tested and proved, faithful to texts from over 1500 years before it. God chose to bless this Bible in English and not the others.

But what about these alternative Bibles? In my previous book, *Is the “World’s Oldest Bible” a Fake?* we found that Codex Sinaiticus, the basis for the shift in modern Bibles, was indeed a fake. In this new book, *Who Faked the “World’s Oldest Bible”?*, we find out WHO faked Sinaiticus.

The truth has waited so long to be told. Now it’s time.

Scholars have told us: “Don’t look here; look there!” No. We will look where the evidence leads us. No one gets a free pass. Everyone is suspect. And you are the detective.
